

The seasonality of flights in Europe and in France

Each line is associated to a European country with complete flight data from January 2016 to May 2022.
The y-axis measures the share of flights from and to each country that each month represents in the total number of flights across the full period.

Example: July 2016 contains 1.8% of all flights from and to France over the full period.

